How to Work with Students with Disabilities

William Miller
DPS Administrator

As an instructor, coordinator, or other employee of Chaffey College, at some time you will have contact with a student with a disability. You may have previous experience working with these students or not. You may be wondering what is the accepted procedures and etiquette for working with these students.

Topics that will be covered will include the accommodations process, disability types, using DPS as a resource, services offered by DPS, lab tour, tram routes, working with students with disabilities who are not part of DPS, service animals, assistive technology, student responsibilities, ergonomic seating, the student’s right to privacy, student behavior and academic code, and more.

This in-service will give the attendee the chance to learn about persons with disabilities and Chaffey College’s policies, as well as, give you the chance to have your questions answered and your concerns addressed.
