How to Enforce Rigor with Compassion

Faculty Panel

Wednesday - March 30, 2011
12:30 PM - FSC ATL 109

When do students deserve the benefit of the doubt? When must they understand that we have high standards for them that cannot be compromised? Many of us struggle to walk the line between enforcing rigor and showing compassion.

We recognize that our students are human beings with lives outside of school, but we are also scholars and instructors who understand that, in the end, we do students no favors by lowering our standards of performance.

Join us for a discussion of enforcing rigor with compassion.
