ABOUT COLLECTIVE CARE

Uncovering Poverty

Collective Care: Uncovering Poverty is a collaborative series of programs developed by the Center for Culture and Social Justice (CCSJ), the Panther Care Program, and the Wignall Museum. Impacts from the global pandemic continue to affect our students and communities, and record level rates of food and housing insecurity affect the basic needs of millions of Americans.

Uncovering Identity

Collective Care: Uncovering Identity is a collaborative series of programs developed by the Center for Culture and Social Justice (CCSJ) and the Wignall Museum that bring together artists and community around issues relevant to the LGBTQ+ Community.

Join us to connect as we examine these issues together. All programs will be held virtually.

The Wignall Museum of Contemporary Art

The Wignall Museum staff remain committed to engaging, inspiring, and educating our community through experiences with contemporary art and culture.

The museum staff are slowly and safely returning to campus and hope to open our doors to the public during the spring semester in 2022. In the interim, we will continue to present virtual programming. Sign up to receive our email announcements (www.chaffey.edu/wignall) and visit our social media to remain updated with new announcements and more information.
