ARTIST TALK Claudia Alvarez

Claudia Alvarez is a Mexican-American artist living in New York City. She attended the University of California, Davis (BA 1999) and California College of Arts, San Francisco (MFA 2003). Alvarez is currently Visiting Assistant Professor at Pratt Institute and Lecturer at New York University.

Alvarez explores notions of memory, immigration, and identity. Through drawing, painting, sculpture and site-responsive installation, she investigates fundamental questions about human behavior, ethics, and power struggles. Her work addresses the way social, political, and psychological structures impact our behavior and personal interactions. By imbuing sculptures of children with adult characteristics and mannerisms, Alvarez tackles issues relating to violence, empowerment, endurance and what they reveal about human nature.

Alvarez's work has been exhibited in the United States, Europe, Canada, Mexico and Japan. Alvarez has received multiple grants and has participated in residencies across the US, Mexico, Japan, and Switzerland. Her work is included in collections at the Sheldon Museum of Art, Lincoln, Nebraska; National Museum of Mexican Art, Chicago, Illinois; Museo de Arte Contemporaneo de Yucatan, Merida, Mexico; Museum of Nebraska Art, Kearny, Nebraska.

ARTIST TALK Isabel Avila

Isabel Avila is a Los Angeles-based artist who uses primarily color film photography to document aspects of cultural history. Isabel is dedicated to exploring local histories of Southern California, focusing on presenting a subjective perspective of the overlap in local Native and Chicano culture. Avila's photographs show this history living, working and actively creating a counter-narrative to mainstream perception.

Avila received her MFA in Photography at CSULB and her BFA in Photography and Imaging, at Art Center College of Design. Avila's exhibition history includes a solo exhibit Parallel Worlds that debuted at the Vincent Price Art Museum, featuring work that was also exhibited in The New World at the Wignall Museum of Contemporary Art and The One & the Many: Perspectives on Self & Other in Art & Human Rights Practices at the University of Dayton. Her new solo exhibition Reflections of Land and Lineage debuted at Beyond Baroque. She was also featured in A Universal History of Infamy at LACMA's Charles White Gallery as part of Pacific Standard Time. Work from her Native America series joined the collection at the Gene Autry Museum of Western Heritage. Avila has also completed a series of eight portraits of Native Americans for the permanent exhibit Becoming LA at the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles.

ARTIST TALK William Camargo

William Camargo is a photo-based artist, educator, and arts advocate. He received his MFA from Claremont Graduate University and his BFA from California State University, Fullerton. His work has been featured at venues such as Chicago Cultural Center, Chicago, IL; Loisaida Center, New York, NY; University of Indianapolis, Indianapolis, IN; SF Camerawork, San Francisco, CA; and The Ethelber Cooper Gallery of African and African American Arts at Harvard University, Cambridge, MA.

Camargo was awarded residencies at the Artists' Cooperative Residency and Exhibitions (ACRE), the Chicago Artist Coalition, Project Art, and at Otis School of Art and Design's LA Summer Program, and the 2020 Lenscratch Student Prize. He is currently Artist in Residence at the Latinx Project at NYU, Commissioner of Heritage and Culture for the City of Anaheim, and the founder and Curator of Latinx Diaspora Archives. He works and lives in Anaheim, CA.

Hip Hop Studies Summit Presents Hit the Streets: Public Art as Activism & Healing Featuring Jonah Elijah and Robert Newman

Jonah Elijah is a Houston, Texas native now working in Los Angeles. He received his BA in Studio Art from the University of Texas at San Antonio in 2017 and his MFA from Claremont Graduate University in 2020.

Elijah's work encapsulates black life in America and addresses controversial issues that actively affect the African American community. Elijah's practice embraces discomfiting realities, using materials to explore economic inequality, displacement, and human rights. Being raised around lower income hardships, Elijah builds off his own personal upbringing and creates works that reflect the black experience. Whether in his paintings or installations, Elijah layers his work with coded language offering an abstracted or representational view of what it's like to be black today.

ARTIST TALK

Christina Erives

Christina Erives was born in Los Angeles, California. Erives received her BA and MA from California State University, Northridge and her MFA from Pennsylvania State University. She has worked as a Resident Artist and Instructor at New Mexico State University; Belger Craneyard Studios in Kansas City, Missouri; the Archie Bray Foundation in Helena, Montana; and the University of Montana.

Ceramics as a material has permanence, it is one of the ways we were able to learn about ancient cultures. There is so much beauty in these traditions and Erives' aim has been to make a mark of her time that will be preserved in the history of ceramic objects.

DESIGN TALK

AIGA Presents Firebelly Design

Will Miller, Tom Tian, and Dean Sweetnich

Firebelly is a socially conscious creative studio specializing in strategic design. Since its founding in 1999, Firebelly has partnered with mission-driven organizations of every size, who value good design as an integral part of their business communications.

Headquartered in Chicago, IL, Firebelly is an intentionally small, consciously diverse and uber-talented design studio. Through a collaborative process, they run across client management, research, strategy, design and development. Their portfolio spans industries and reflects the diversity of the communities their clients serve.

The studio is committed to diversity and inclusion, with the goal of creating a more equitable, just world. They believe diversity—across age, gender, race, religion, citizenship status, ability, sexual orientation, education, class and culture—builds perspective and empathy, which are critical to responsible design. This work is unending. Firebelly remains steadfast in their dedication to use their collective power and platforms to dismantle inequity, promote diversity and inclusion, and together, design a better world.

SKILLSHARE Arts Connection Executive Director Jennifer Kane

Jennifer Kane is an artist, arts organizer, and teacher from Los Angeles, CA and currently resides in Joshua Tree. She serves as the Executive Director of Arts Connection, the Arts Council of San Bernardino County. Jennifer received her BA in Fine Arts from Mount St. Mary's College and her MFA in Public Practice from Otis College of Art and Design. She is a recent graduate of Arts for LA's ACTIVATE Cultural Policy Fellowship program.

Jennifer Kane has directed Arts Connection since early 2018 and has launched 3 new programs regionally to help the organization better serve artists and arts/culture organizations across San Bernardino County. The Arts Innovator Micro Grant offers $500 grants to individual artists living and working in San Bernardino County. Through peer-to-peer fundraising and sponsorships, Arts Connection is able to sustain this annual grant program launched in 2019. The Teaching Artist Training program builds a supportive learning network for practicing artists who want to take the next step towards teaching their craft in community and after-school programs. This program launched in fall 2020 with a cohort of 16 artists from across San Bernardino County. Arts for IE is another new initiative that Jennifer helped create in response to the pandemic. This bi-county arts advocacy collaborative seeks to change the funding narrative for the arts in the Inland Southern CA region.

ARTIST TALK

Ann Le

Ann Le has always dealt with identity, culture, family history, and the duality of becoming Vietnamese-American in her work. Inspired by the cultural contexts in her life, Le correlates the artificial with remembrances of generational trauma. Sentiment is vital in her works as she questions her personal experiences to construct imposing art. She excavates her lineage by revisiting her family's experiences by using personal and found images to reconstruct slippages in time and history. As layers of images are stacked upon one another, Le travels through time commenting on the idea of home, displacement, separation, and how we embrace and conquer loss. Tragic and Poetic composites are pieced together to unravel narratives which places her Vietnamese-American perspective into a contemporary landscape. Ann Le was born in San Diego, CA and currently lives and works in Los Angeles.

WORKSHOP

Make a Zine with Tierra del Sol Studios Jackie Marsh and Katie Mendoza

Jackie Marsh has worked as a studio artist at the progressive art studios of Tierra del Sol since 2009. Marsh produces whimsical depictions of animals and flowers in painting, drawing and ceramics. In both her two- and three-dimensional work, gestural mark-making is combined with a vibrant and loosely applied color palette to define her delightfully exuberant style.

In addition to being a studio artist, Marsh also teaches art classes at Upland Art Studios, the Joslyn Senior Center and other venues. Her work has been exhibited at such venues as the Chan Gallery, Pomona College, Claremont, California; California Baptist University, Riverside, California; Claremont Graduate University, Claremont, California; and Zask Gallery, Palos Verdes, California. When she's not developing her art career, you can find Marsh at work providing compassionate care to the animals of local animal shelters.

Katie Mendoza has a deep interest in the world around her and she thoughtfully shares with others her insights on a wide variety of subjects. She is an explorer and inspires those around her with a positive inquisitiveness. Mendoza seeks daily to expand her skills and is a naturally talented artist and teacher. Every day she has something brilliant to share. Mendoza creates and designs characters and stories for movies. She recently designed and made a set of tarot cards and does readings. Mendoza's paintings, drawings and sculpture generally have a surprise element to draw the viewer in.

ARTIST TALK

Jaime Muñoz

Jaime Muñoz was born in Los Angeles and received a BA in Fine Art from the University of California, Los Angeles in 2016. Muñoz currently lives and works in Pomona, CA. The visual language of his work is focused on aspects of identity, the commodification of labor, religion, and the critique of Latin American colonialism and Modernism. He is inspired by concepts of "Blood Memory," the relationship that ancestral ties have to the present-day experience. He is also inspired by the concept of "Toyoteria," which is a working-class shared experience through economic necessity around the R-series Toyota mini work trucks. A driving force in his technique is inspired by decorative aspects of commonplace everyday life and ordinary objects found in his community.

Hip Hop Studies Summit Presents

Hit the Streets: Public Art as Activism & Healing

Featuring Jonah Elijah and Robert Newman

Robert Newman is New York-based artist. Newman currently works as an Assistant Vice President at Neuberger Berman. In 2020 Newman transitioned into the role of Equity, Inclusion & Diversity Program Manager for the firm. One of his notable accomplishments/responsibilities in the role has been co-chairing Black History Month 2019 & 2020.

Outside of the office, he spends a majority of his time working as a freelance visual artist, creating exhibitions in galleries across New York City and serving the community through various mentoring and arts based non-profits. In the community, Newman is known for his work as the Co-Founder of Words on Whites Movement, an arts & advocacy initiative; and Silent Renaissance, an organization dedicated to bringing people together and promoting Black art.

As of 2020, Newman was appointed as the President of the Morehouse NYC Alumni Association after serving the board as the Director of Programming & Social Engagement since 2018. In his role as president, he is responsible for carrying out the organization's goals of helping NYC area alumni connect with the school, each other, and the broader NYC community.

Zeke Peña & Isabel Quintero

Zeke Peña makes comics and visual narratives to reclaim stories and remix history. Peña was born in Las Cruces, NM and grew up in El Paso, TX. While doodling in the margins of his notebook, he received a degree in Art History from the University of Texas at Austin. His work uses a mash-up of political cartoon, border rasquache and Hip Hop culture to address universal themes of identity, politics, ecology, and social justice. He has won awards for his book illustrations and his work is in several collections of American and Xicano art. Peña is currently digging into family history to write stories for future projects.

CONVERSATION

Wimbley/Christion Curatorial

Chris Christion and Jessica Wimbley are both artists/curators based in Northern California. As a curatorial team, Wimbley/Christion, they curate a series of exhibitions contextualizing the visual arts within “biomythography”. Biomythography is a literary term; it is a style of composition that weaves myth, history, and biography in epic narrative. Defined by Audre Lorde in her seminal piece Zami: A New Spelling of My Name, it has been known to shape theories of intersectionality and highlight the idea of internal, external, and multiple selves. As artist/curators Christion and Wimbley are intrigued by the interconnected and multifaceted link of biomythography across disciplines, particularly in the visual arts.

Through developing a series of curatorial projects, workshops, and lectures contextualizing the visual arts within biomythography, Wimbley/Christion work as context providers for critical dialectic: addressing the nuances within ever shifting identities and how we experience/create our contemporary world and culture.

Exhibitions in academic and non-profit art spaces in Southern California include Cerritos College, California Lutheran University, Eastside International (Los Angeles), University of La Verne, and Claremont Graduate University.

ASK ART

USING THE MUSEUM TO MAKE CURRICULAR CONNECTIONS

QUESTIONS FOR VIEWING

If you were the curator or producer of this series of virtual programs, what would you title it and why?

Wimbley/Christion Curatorial, is comprised of artists/curators Jessica Wimbley and Chris Christion. In their ongoing curatorial project they explore the literary term “biomythography” which is defined as “a style of composition that weaves myth, history, and biography in epic narrative.” Defined by Audre Lorde in her seminal piece Zami: A New Spelling of My Name it has been known to shape theories of intersectionality and highlight the idea of internal, external, and multiple selves. Who is she? Why is her research important? Why does her scholarship resonate still today? Write a short essay about what you learned.

Cole M. James uses scent as one component of their work. Consider why an artist would use scent as a medium in their work. Is scent meant to enhance the visual imagery or does it serve an alternative purpose? Research olfactory art as you consider the role of our sense of smell in experiencing works of art.

Nicole Rademacher often explores adoption in her personal and collective works with other adoptee’s. Analyze the ways in which adoption and adoptee experiences are represented in the media, by for-profit adoption organizations, and by adoptees. Compare and contrast the representations of the various experiences you found in your research. Do you see divides in the marketing materials and lived experiences? How does this information affect your response to Rademacher’s work?

Claudia Alvarez, Christina Erives, and Stanton Hunter all work with clay. Listen to two of the three artist talks, then compare these artists and their use of materials, subject matter, and techniques.

Zeke Peña and Isabel Quintero have collaborated on a number of literary projects. Research other artist collaborators from history and write a short essay on collaborative artists that inspire you.

ACTIVITIES

Tell a friend, classmate, instructor, or family member about the series of talks presented for Home Edition. Invite them to view an event with you, virtually. Which virtual event should they definitely attend? Why?

Create a work of art inspired by a work of art you saw in one of the Home Edition episodes. Use crude, unusual, or otherwise accessible materials that you find around your home to create a 2D or 3D work of art. Share on Instagram #wignallmuseumhomeedition.

Hip Hop Studies is a multidisciplinary field of study that encompasses communication studies, art history, dance, music and music theory, gender studies, among others. What are the origins of Hip Hop Studies in academia? Attend at least one virtual event during the Hip Hop Summit in February to learn more. @chaffeyhiphop

Visit Tierra del Sol Studios and Gallery online to learn more about the organization, the gallery, and their programs. Use the internet to research some of Tierra del Sol Studios artists including Evelyn Campos, Helen Rae, Dru McKenzie, and Michael Lavell.

Read Audre Lorde in her seminal work, Zami: A New Spelling of My Name, and create a work of art or writing inspired by Zami. Document it and share on social media, #wignallmuseumhomeedition.

Attend one of the live virtual events presented in Home Edition. Ask an artist a question during the Q & A portion of the episode.

Create a work of art, literature, or music with an olfactory component to the work.

A number of the artists investigate identity in their work. Explore your own intersecting identities by creating a zine, a poem, short story, or work of art. Document it and share on social media, #wignallmuseumhomeedition.

Show a friend or family member(s) from multiple generations how to make a mini-zine out of one 8.5 x 11 inch piece of paper. Create a perzine or fanzine together about a topic that you’re all interested in. A “perzine” is a zine that explores your own experiences, observations, and opinions. A “fanzine” is a zine that explores the authors enthusiasm for a particular cultural phenomenon for the pleasure of others who share their interest. Photograph or scan it and share on social media #wignallmuseumhomeedition.
