
Gerontology Program

The Chaffey College Gerontology program provides an interdisciplinary study of aging including an understanding of the aging process and of society's response to the increasing older adult population. The program prepares students for careers as service delivery personnel working directly with older adults, administration of older adult services and programs, and research in the physical, psycho-social, and policy domains of aging. The program provides many educational options including a Gerontology Certificate Program and an Associates in Science Degree.

ABOUT the MUSEUM

The Wignall Museum of Contemporary Art serves as a learning lab for investigating and contemplating contemporary visual culture, featuring temporary exhibitions of innovative contemporary art throughout the year. Exhibitions and programming are organized with our students in mind in order to augment their academic experience by complementing the college's curricula and broadening the understanding of contemporary art. Our exhibitions allow visitors to see and experience a variety of contemporary artistic practices that examine timely and relevant topics.

The Wignall is an important resource for students, faculty, and staff that can act as a catalyst for a student's own creative investigations or enhance classroom experience with direct engagement with art. For many visitors, exhibitions at the Wignall Museum of Contemporary Art may provide an exciting first encounter with the visual arts. The Museum strives to transform the art museum experience into something unexpected, extraordinary and engaging. We invite you to visit us and to explore!

WHEN I'M

a contemporary art exhibition celebrating positive aging

When I'm Sixty-Four

Curated by Rebecca Trawick

September 10 -
November 21, 2012

When I'm Sixty-Four explores the lives of our older adult population. In California alone it is projected the population over the age of 65 will rise to 6.5 million in the first two decades of the new millennium. All aspects of life will be impacted from politics, public services, economy and healthcare. As our population ages we have to ask ourselves the role they'll play in our culture and whether or not our perception, acceptance and politics will grow along with them. The contemporary artists in When I'm Sixty-Four use diverse media to explore the realities of the lives of our elderly and will pose questions about our concepts of aging, what we can all do to access our older and wiser community members and how public policies and healthcare reform are at the forefront of this discussion. The Wignall Museum of Contemporary Art is working closely with the Gerontology Program at Chaffey College to schedule related programming including lectures, film screenings, and special performances featuring the amazing older people in our communities.
